

You are Empowering.

Now that you are clearer on how you are changing lives with your work, this phase is all about getting glimpses of what it feels like when you are in alignment. It will feel graceful, easier and flowing like one thing graciously leads to the next even if it might not make sense at the time you are making that decision to do it.

Recognizing, trusting, and taking that guided action is the essential steps to being in the flow and experiencing what it is to be in alignment.

Now, how do it on purpose? Time to simplify and streamline your pipelines + processes letting go of what does not serve you or tweaking things to work better.

If you have been in business a while, you might be asking yourself: “why am I back at the beginning, or feel like I’m starting over?” No matter what stage you are in within the entrepreneur's journey, we all need to be working, course-correcting, or trying out new ways to get us moving forward to our next level, right?

Here's a are a few questions to help get you even clearer on what you need to focus on to start leveling up!

Questions to ask yourself:

What does it feel like when everything is flowing my way? What do I do differently?

How does it feel when I am not in the flow? What are the signs I’m out of alignment?

What are some aspects of my business I want to simplify or not do at all?

What’s one thing I still don’t feel clear on?